

2024 CAPA Lizhen Gui Award Winner

Dear CAPA members,

We are delighted to announce that Mengxue Zhang, M.D./Ph.D. was selected as the recipient of the 2024 Lizhen Gui Award.

We received self-nominations from 12 excellent pathology residents from CAPA community this year. Evaluation was based on clinical performance, research/ publications during training, and leadership and service to CAPA and other pathology organizations. Award committee members independently reviewed and scored applications. To avoid conflict of interest, committee members did not score applications from their own institutions.

Dr. Mengxue Zhang is currently a PGY-2 AP&CP resident in training at the Department of Pathology, University of Chicago. Over just the past one and half year since starting her residency, Dr. Zhang has consistently demonstrated outstanding clinical capabilities, strong aspiration in research, and exceptional passion and commitment to the field of pathology, particularly through significant contributions to CAPA's educational and social media outreach. Dr. Zhang has served on the CAPA online education committee since 2023. She has been actively involved in coordinating course speakers and hosts, making weekly course flyers, and keeping CAPA WeChat groups informed of the course schedule. Dr. Zhang has additionally served on social media committees since 2022. The official Twitter account of CAPA was created/launched by her in September 2022. Dr. Zhang remains the official Twitter handler who is responsible for weekly postings including CAPA educational series, live broadcasting of CAPA events, and award opportunity announcement, etc.

Dr. Lizhen Gui has reviewed the application of Dr. Zhang and approved the committee's selection.

We would like to congratulate Dr. Zhang on her excellent clinical work and academic achievements. We would like to thank her for her contribution to CAPA through volunteer work.
